

The Common Primrose is one of the first flowers to bloom in spring, bearing pale yellow flowers with darker centers. This perennial grows 10-15 cm tall in woodland settings. Primroses prefer partial shade and moist, humus-rich soil. They naturalize well and attract early pollinators. In folklore, primroses are associated with protection and love.